Refugees Flee Into West Berlin

BERLIN (AP) - The Communist threat to West Berlin sent a record 4,000 refugees fleeing into West Berlin over the weekend. raising once more the question of why the Communist police don't cut off the flow that worsens production shortages in East Germany and gives the satellite regime a worse name

The question always arises when there is a spurt in the number fleeing to the West.

The Communists' vast police apparatus undoubtedly could stop the traffic, 80 to 90 per cent of which funnels through East Berlin into West Berlin. There could be much tighter checks on travel into East Berlin, and then on the City's interzone railways that A LONG WAY UP - If the West Berlin each day to work.

away many escapees since "flight tallest building in Europe. from the (Communist) republic" is a crime punishable by two 1,016 foot building of rein-

Fear of losing face is thought to be one powerful motive that keeps the Communists from stronger measures. East Berlin has been proclaimed the capital of their "German Democratic Republic." It would look bad to the world if citizens were prevented from freely visiting their capital.

The communist authorities may also feel that they are better off without some of the refugees. They know their regime is unpopular. Discontented people who are forced to stay might turn out to be a lot more trouble than they are worth.

The Soviets also may be taking a hand behind the scenes. In public Moscow says that all political matters in East Germany are in German hands. In private the Soviets often show concern over the World War II agreements with the Western allies that guarantee free movement within the city. Moscow may not want to give the West further reason to say that these agreements are being violated in Berlin.

What The Indians Want

About seven hundred American Indians recently met in conference at the University of Chicago. They represented eighty tribal

The first recommendation of the conference was to end the termination policy under which federal supervision and subsidy of reservations could be concluded without the consent of the Indians concerned.

Since 1924, Indians have been fully recognized as citizens of the United States with the privileges and responsibilities of citizens. However, tribes have collectively held property managed by government officials. The termination policy looked forward to the rapid and largely one-sided liquidation of trusteeships over reservations and of services to the Indians who lived there.

This has been disappointing. What the Indians want will take longer. They want education and opportunities on their reservations

The American Indian should be protected and his wants granted by Washington. It should be our patriotic duty to aid in every way the survival of America's first citizens and to preserve their culture.

Exit Undersecretary of State

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON - Here is a tell-tale clue as to what's behind the impending exit of Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles, former governor of Connecticut, Ambassador to India, and wartime price administrator. Bowles was an early Kennedy supporter but got in the dog house when he leaked word to the press after the Cuban fiasco that he had been against it.

President Kennedy was talking to a friend about the incident

"I don't know what's the matter with this guy Bowles," he said. "I asked him several times about the Cuban operation and he was for it. Then he holds a press conference and says he didn't know anything about it.

"After the working-over Bobby gave him, I thought he'd resign, but he hasn't," the President added

What President Kennedy referred to was a conversation his brother, the Attorney General, had with the Undersecretary of State which one eyewitness described as "explosive."

"Bowles." Bobby stormed, thumping the Undersecretary of State on the chest, "You're no damn good. You know you were consulted about the Cuban operation and you said to go ahead with it. Now you've leaked a story to the press that you were against it.

"You're no damn good," concluded the Attorney General Pakistan Problem

Thought for Today

WHAT SHALL I TELL MY DAUGHTERS? By Phyllis McGinley, Pulitzer Prize Winner, 1961, and author of Times Three

Suddenly a mother looks about her and her children are children no longer. Next year or the year after will bring college or a job. It will also bring love or its facsimile.

What then shall I, what shall any mother, give her daughters (for since I have only daughters, I must speak of the gender I know best) as a guard against the dangerous journey they must take alone? For we know, unfashionable as it may be to say so, that the dangers are real.

Surely no one would be naieve enough to think that little biological chats about conception and bodily structure are sufficient. Home ties are breaking off, and to the confusion of new voices and circumstances and the competition for popularity will be added the pulse of their own blood. What memorable word can we teach them?

I have talked this over with friends and psychologists. I have read the brochures and the textbooks. I have also thought about the problem deeply, and I know what I, for one shall do. It has not been mentioned at all in any of the dozens of pamphlets and tomes I have dipped into. But it seems sanest. I shall remind my daughters simply that there is such a thing as right and such a thing as wrong. I shall commit the dreadful heresy of talking about sin

My daughters shall be told that there exists a moral law and an ancient commandment and that they do wrong to ignore them.

I consider such teaching wholesome and effective. To begin with, sin implies goodness, and the young love goodness with all their heart. We all know how fiercely they react against injustice and they hate hypocrisy. To take away their delight in virtue, to tell them that they must withstand temptations because temptations are merely urges toward immature behaviour, is to give them stones when they pant for bread. It is to weaken the muscles of their character.

Now all this does not mean that because I am, like Coolidge's minister, against sin, I am also against sex or that my girls will get that impression. On the contrary, they will believe, I hope, that it is one of the moving graces of the world, far too magnificent a gift to be carelessly handled. We three women in our house are proud of being women. So when I mention the moral standard, they will understand that it is for the sake of protecting this magnificence that mankind has slowly, strugglingly, been building for several thousand years.

Right and wrong do not change, nor do their consequences. And of this my daughters must be aware.

So what in the end shall I tell my daughters about chastity before marriage? Of course I shall point out the ordinary social penalties attached to any other conduct. I shall touch on the possible pregnancy and heartbreak. But I shall also say that love is never merely a biological act but one of the few miracles left on earth, and that to use it cheaply is

In fact this is what I have already told the President of Pakistan called a spade a spade in demanding foreign aid. But words are not everything, and their manner of delivery does not make or unmake policy. For behind the scenes, when President Kennedy and President Ayub got down to the short holds that must come during any diplomatic negotiation, things were not as salubrious as during that candlelight dinner at

Behind the perfect English and the charming demeanor of Mohammed Ayub, here are some of the unfortunate factors which Kennedy had to wrestle with:

Unfortunate Factor No. 1 - President Ayub has given Soviet Russia a concession to explore for oil throughout Pakistan. This means Red geologists can roam all over the country locating the secret radar stations from which the U. S. Air Force tries to observe Soviet operations across the Himalayas.

U. S. oil companies did their best to find oil in Pakistan; failed. It wasn't there. Despite this Ayub turned to Russia.

Unfortunate Factor No. 2 - Along with the oil concession, President Ayub gave Russia certain rights to submit textbooks and use teachers in Pakisani schools. As yet, this is not extensive, but it's an entering wedge which could grow.

Unfortunate Factor No. 3 - President Ayub wants free arms for the Pakistani Army; no arms for India. What he didn't mention was that U. S. arms to Pakistan ricochet as dangerously as a bullet fired on a crowded sidewalk in New York.

First they are used for maneuvers against the Afghans in the North. This in turn brings 17's and Ilyushin bombers plus truck caravans of Russian arms across Afghanistan to the Pakistan border. Afghanistan is trying to stay neutral, accepts educational aid from the University of Wyoming and highway-airport aid from the U.S. technicians. But faced with the U.S. equipped Pakistani Army in the South, it imports arms from Moscow.

Second, Russian arms in Afghanistan worry the Iranians, and the Shah of Iran asks the USA for more arms. When I was in Teheran last year he complained bitterly to me about this. This means more arms from us and more drain on the budget

Third, U. S. arms to Pakistan cause India to import more arms. While the Indians don't get arms free, we in turn give credits in food of several million dollars, which relieve the Indian treasury so it can afford to Thus ricochet U. S. arms which the austere tough-talking President of Pakistan says he wants from us.

Unfortunate Factor No. 4 - There was a time when the U-2 flights from Pakistan over Russia may have made military aid to Pakistan worthwhile. But since Central Intelligence and the Eisenhower administration sent Francis Gary Powers over Russia at the most inopportune of all times - just before the Summit Conference - there have been no more U-2 flights. President Ayub is just as fearful of Russian threats as other U.S. allies.

Unfortunate Factor No. 5 — President Ayub runs just as tight a dictatorship as Fidel Castro. It's friendly to us, of course, and on the whole it's benevolent. But there is no freedom of the press, no parliamentary government, no civil liberties. You can get arrested for playing your radio too loud, or for changing the oil of your car on the side of the road. It's honest and efficient, but it's a dictatorship just the same. Meanwhile, nearby India, which Ayub wants us to boycott, operates one of the few democracies in Asia. Those were some of the backstage factors which the Senators who praised Ayub didn't know about, but which President Kennedy had to wrestle with.

SAVANNAH MORNING NEWS: How's That, Dear? - According to a just-completed voices test conducted among 500 British women between the ages of 21 and 28, married women almost invariably talk louder than single ones.

Some husbands will say this test was never really needed, that the fact it uncovered was already known to every married man. Some wives, on the other hand, will contend that they must speak loudly because their husbands seem hard of hearing whenever they mention such matters as stopped-up sinks and lawns that need mowing.

No Hits, No Runs, No Errors On Berlin

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst WASHINGTON (AP) - So far it's just some more conversation between two hard-of-hearing people trying to tell each other what they told each other before.

All in a few days the Western Allies, answering Premier Khrushchev's threat to get them out Berlin, told him he was endangering the peace and a Moscow Radio replied that in doing this they were "abetting forces" trying for war.

No hits, no runs, no errors. If this is confusing to anyone it's only because he forgets he was through it all once before as the following series of parallel events the last time and now, will show:

President Eisenhower wouldn't hear of it. And on Dec. 31 the Western Allies sent the Russian a note saying so at some

On June 3-4, 1961 Khrushchev made the pitch all over again to President Kennedy in Vienna. Kennedy wouldn't hear of it, either. And Tuesday the Western Allies sent the Russians notes saying so at some length. On Jan. 7, 1959 the American State Department put out a pamphlet giving the legal and historical reasons why the Allies were right in insisting on staying in Berlin.

In a short time the American State Department will issue a 1961 version of the same pamphlet-called this time a "White Paper"-saying just about what the State Department said in

And not long after the Allies sent their note and the State Department put out its pamphlet in 1959 the Western foreign ministers agreed to meet to talk the whole thing over.

Now in 1961, after the Allies sent their note and it was announced the State Department would issue a "White Paper," the Western foreign ministers agreed (this was announced Tuesday) to meet to talk the whole thing over.

Since so far everything that has happened is a duplicate of what happened before, it doesn't need much imagination to suggest there will be some more dupli-

For instance, the Western foreign ministers met with Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko starting May 11, 1959. The West offered a Berlin plan which the Russian rejected and he offered one which the West turned down. So, after meeting from May 11

Lately I've wondered if we did wrong when we sent him to his grandmother at the time of his sister's birth and kept the older boy with us. He is so jealous I think at times he hates me. . .

ANSWER: Ask your pediatrician if he thinks this child needs professional help with his jealousy. Now about you. You didn't send this boy away from home when his sister was born to hurt him, did you? You sent him to grandma because it seemed the only thing to do at the time. We parents are not gifted with infallible foresight. We do not have to spend our lives apologizing to children for exposing them to situations whose harmful effects we could not foresee at the time. I think you are doing just that. I think that fear of having treated this child unfairly makes you especially vulnerable to his accusations of "unfairness."

To feel obliged to deliver perfect fairness to a jealous child is to paralyz our ability to take

A - If the spinal curvature is not too extreme and it is due to a correctible cause such as muscle weakness or a shortened leg, it may be overcome by exercises, the use of braces and adjustments of the shoes.

However, if the cause is not correctible, such as a congenital deformity of the vertebrae or their destruction by a disease like tuberculosis, operative treatment may merit consideration by an experienced orthopedic surgeon.

Q - Is Paget's disease curable? If so, how?

A - Paget's disease of the bone is incurable, though it is compatible with many years of comfortable living. When the legs become greatly bowed, care must be exercised to prevent even slight falls that may result in fractures that heal very slowly.

Q - Each year I have about eight attacks of what the doctors call "paroxysmal auricular tachycardia." I have been taught to press against a blood vessel in my throat until the attack stops, usually in 15 minutes to an hour. Isn't it possible to prevent these attacks from coming? Will they ever prove fatal?

A - Paroxysmal irregularities of the heart, such as the one you describe, are very frequent and very, very rarely the cause dance, they should learn how. If for more than passing discomfort.

> If the cause can be discovered attacks may be prevented. Such causes include over - activity of the thyroid gland, overdoses of drugs such as digitalis, excessive smoking and overloading of the stomach with food and drink.

> The method for controlling the attack, by pressing on the carotid sinus in the neck, is approved and usually effective. But some patients discover other methods of stopping the attack like doubling over the back of a chair or standing on the head.

> The important thing to remember during the attack is the avoidance of panic. Of the thousands of paroxysmal heart irregularies that occur each day, perhaps 99 per cent-plus are over and done with in a very few moments.

We, the Women

Men: Applied Psychology Can Save You Money

By RUTH MILLETT Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Memo to Men: Here's some amin handy the next time your wife starts talking about still another labor saving device for the home.

A doctor on the staff of Western Reserve University Medical School has come up with some figures showing how many calories per minute a woman uses in doing her daily housework.

* Scrubbing floors on hands and knees - 7 calories per minute. * Ironing - 4.2 calories per wash - 4.5 to 5. (More if the wash is carried up steps.) * Washing lingerie by hand 3 calories per minute.

* Carrying out and hanging up

Now the point is that the more calories a woman uses each day the fewer she stores up to turn into fat. So it goes without saying that the more laborsaving devices a woman owns - the more she is going to have to fight the problem of overweight. So if your wife complains about having to lug clothes to the line -remind her of what that chore is doing to keep her figure trim. If she wants a machine to scrub and wax her floors, point out how many calories she uses up doing the job with muscle power, rather than electric power. If she think she ought to have

But that's just a chance you'll have to take if you decide to try to sell your wife on the idea of working her way into a trim fig-
